Data Collection: Sales Dataset collected from POS system as people transact

Data Ingestion: Data is moved using ETL pipeline - Databricks

Data Processing: Data processing happens in Databricks using SQL to process the data

Data Analysis: we extract data in Databricks to Excel

Data Presentation: i will use PowerPoint to present my findings

Sales by Category and time interval: Which product sells best,Broken down by 30 min window of the day

High and low performing products: Top 10/botton 10 products ranked by revenue

Total Revenue Calculations: Overall revenue,plus splits by category,product,store location,day and month

Peak trading hours: busiest and quetest 30 min window

Store and day of the week patterns: Compare 3 Stores locations and 7 days of the week to spot any underperforming outliers

Fix Unit_price format: Cast (REPLACE (Unit_price,',',''))

Total amount per line: total amount = Unit price * transaction_qty

30-min time buckets: Grouping transaction time into intervals

Unit sold by product: SUM(transaction_qty) GROUP BY product type product details

AVG Transaction Value: $ per sale and item per basket to spot upsell

Monthly revenue trend: Jan-Jun trend line to check for growth/decline weekdays vs weekends comparing performance during weekdays and weekends

Category mix shift: whether coffe/tea's share of revenue changes month to month

Cross-Sell Potential: Products frequently bought together